Last Time

Carlos and Linda Davis, CCB member and VP and CEO of C & L Photo-Graphics, Inc., gave an outstanding presentation on how to produce still life and tabletop photography. Carlos outlined the techniques used starting with generating an idea. Ideas come from other art or photographs, articles, and other themes. The keys to a successful still life photograph are composition, lighting, and an emotional content or message. Composition is the selection and arrangement of your picture elements (shapes, lines, tones and colors) within the picture area in an orderly, purposeful manner in order to communicate your ideas to the viewer. You need to select and emphasize the things that aid in getting your idea across and discard those that will distract the viewer. You should pay close attention to the picture area, the lightness or darkness of the photo (helps to set the mood), lines of direction (used to direct the viewer's eye around the photo), and depth (illusion that things exist in 3-D). The backgrounds were created by using mat board, hand painted mat board, or were computer generated and printed on watercolor paper. Using a black non-reflective background can create dramatic effects.

Lighting was created using floodlights, snoot lights, soft box, diffusers, reflectors, glass with textures, and flashlights. Brightness controls were used to dim the tungsten lights as needed. A circular polarizer is used to cancel reflections in shiny objects. The f-stop range is kept to less than 4 f-stops with individual objects (highlight to shadow) being kept to approximately 2 f-stops.

Carlos uses a Nikon™ D200 with a 105-macro lens. He uses the camera's spot meter and adjusts the compensation control to capture the correct exposure.

Genuine fractals PrintPro™ is used to resize the images and Photoshop™ is used to print the final results on an Epson 4000. Many examples of their work were shown and discussed. Be sure to thank them for a great presentation.

Christmas Party & Annual Contest

The Christmas party was a huge success. It was held at the Eau Gallie Yacht Club in Indian Harbor Beach. The dinner was one of the best that we have ever had at a Christmas party and the decorations were top notch. Be sure to thank Larry and Nancy for their hard work. The contest entries were an indication of the continued skill growth of our members. The judges found it hard to decide between the outstanding entries. The results of their work were as follows: Color: First place – Richard Thomson, Second Place – Richard Thomson, Third Place – Arnold Dubin, and Honorable Mention – Stan Crandall. Black & White: First place – Larry Davis, Second Place – Bill Highsmith, Third Place – Al Fox, and Honorable Mention – Richard Thomson. Be sure to congratulate these outstanding photographers the next time you see them.
